Gypsy moth spray offer rejected by Natural Resources

by Susan Grober

The gypsy moth spray program will continue in Haliburton County, even though the Ministry of Natural Resources has rejected a counter offer from the Gypsy Moth Management Committee.

Unless a new arrangement can be reached with the committee, the ministry will develop a spray program for individual municipalities, according to a press release issued from the ministry on Friday.

This means private landowners will have to pay more to fight the voracious caterpillar.

"I'm very disappointed with the ministry," Bill Davis, Committee Chairman and Dysart reeve, told The Times. "I'm disheartened, but not surprised by the tone of the meeting yesterday."

Negotiators of the committee met with Natural Resources Minister Bud Wildman on Thursday in an attempt to work things out, after the committee turned down a costly proposal made by the ministry the previous week.

The ministry wants to charge landowners $60 for the first three acres sprayed.

Using a sliding scale, $15, $10, and $1 would be levied for additional acreage, depending on the size of the property. It increases to the point where 100 acres would cost more than $600.

In a counter offer on Thursday, the management committee proposed that $25 an acre be charged, just to cover the actual spray cost.

"We figured, scratch the $60 and let the landowner pay the direct cost."

"If that was reality, for the people with one acre it would be $35 less than what the ministry proposed, but for those with two acres, it would be $10 less."

Davis was offended that the ministry not only rejected this proposal, but issued an incorrect statement on the matter.

The ministry's news release states the management committee proposed that landowners pay $25 for spraying up to two acres, with a larger scale for larger areas.

Wildman is quoted as saying: "Making a new offer that is much lower than its earlier proposals raises questions about the committee's commitment to achieving a settlement that is acceptable to both the municipalities and the provincial government."

Police seek local man wanted for armed robbery

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

One of two local men, sought by Coboconk OPP in connection with an armed robbery near Fenelon Falls, has been captured in Miami Florida.

Ronald Martin Goulet, age 26, of Norland was arrested by Miami Police on August 14 in connection with unspecified criminal activity and is currently in Dade County Jail, Florida awaiting a court appearance on Sept. 3.

Minden resident Thomas William George, age 26, is still at large and a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

On Aug. 3, two males broke into the Byrnell Golf Club and Restaurant near Fenelon Falls.

The owners of the golf club were robbed at knife point and the two men stole cash, liquor and the victim's car.

There were no injuries.

The stolen car was recovered in the Minden area, however a burgundy 1985 Plymouth Voyager van, license number 369 HAX was stolen from the area where the first stolen car was recovered.

Goulet was out on a weekend pass from the Bath Institution at Millhaven at the time of the robbery and he is also wanted by the OPP for being unlawfully at large.

Police are continuing their search for George, who is described as white, five feet nine inches tall, with brown hair and brown eyes. He is considered dangerous.

Anyone with any information should contact the OPP at 286-1431 or 1-800-461-6488.

Arena suit against builders goes to court next month

Minden's lawsuit against the builders of the arena will be heading into a courtroom in early September.

A letter to Minden council from Larry Todd, the lawyer representing the municipality, says a trial date will probably be set for the week of September 9. An official with the Solicitor General's civil court division says the lawyers will be contacted on Friday, September 6 and given a date and location for the trial.

The municipality is suing Norman Burling Builders Ltd., the company which built the arena in the fall of 1972, and Ron Harrison, the architect who was involved in the project.

Robert McEwen, the engineering consultant hired by the council to oversee repairs to the arena, says calcium added to mortar during construction corroded the building's steel frame.

Adding calcium to mortar prevents freezing during cold weather construction but contravenes the Ontario Building Code.

Harrison denies that calcium was used during the arena construction and says inspections he made of the building during repairs did not reveal any of the alleged corrosion.

Collision with truck kills Ashburn woman, 62

by Susan Grober

An accident involving an Ashburn couple visiting the area for the Haliburton County Agricultural Fair parade resulted in one fatality last Saturday.

The couple's 1987 red Plymouth Reliant was hit as the driver attempted a left turn from Highway 35 onto Minden's Main Street, and drove into the path of a tractor trailer truck.

The Kawartha Dairy truck, driven by Jeffrey Crowe, 42, of Bobcaygeon, crashed into the car's passenger side.

The accident occurred at 11 a.m., and it took members of the Minden fire department until approximately 11:30 to get the couple out of the car, using the Jaws for Life.

Passenger Hilda Cockburn, 62, died after three hours in hospital, and an autopsy is being performed to determine the cause of death.

Her friend, 72-year-old Robert Bradburn, the driver of the vehicle, is now in stable condition at Sunnybrook Hospital.

Bradburn was charged with failing to afford reasonable opportunity to avoid a collision while making a left turn.

He was in the area to take part in the parade with fellow Oshawa Shriners.

The investigating officer, Constable Brian Brattengeier, says many people stopped to help out at the accident scene, including Ted Vasey and John Mackey of Minden, and George White of Oshawa who came forward with information, and others who directed traffic.

As of Sunday morning, there were a total of six accidents this weekend.

One of the accidents, which occurred on Friday, resulted in serious injury.

Most people wouldn't want to be in hospital on their birthday, but Judy Stevenson is grateful. The Minden resident has been able to book the date for an operation to relieve her severe osteoporosis, thanks to the support of members of the community who pitched in with donations. Because the only doctor who can help Stevenson is in Baltimore, Maryland, she requires $6,000 in medical and travel expenses. Confident that the donations will eventually be enough to cover the costs, Stevenson made an appointment for the operation which, ironically, will take place on her birthday in October. At the last official tally, the 'Operation Judy Fund' has raised $4,612, but these donation boxes have been back in local stores for more than a week since then. Here Willie Miller, Judy Stevenson, and Kinette Prentice show off the collection boxes made by Miller.

Gypsy moth spraying will continue here

"I took offense to that statement, because it's wrong," said Davis.

"We started out asking for $12 an acre, and they wanted $120 an acre. It only costs $60 an acre for the average cost of the whole program."

For five years, the management committee has administered the MNR program to control gypsy moth on private land in southern Ontario.

The Gypsy Moth Management Committee is comprised of 17 district, regional and county municipalities, and the First Nation native reserve from Grand River. Under the present, heavily subsidized spray program agreement, which expires at the end of this year, landowners in these areas pay only $6 an acre for spraying.

Davis has called for an emergency meeting of the management committee to be held Thursday, August 22, in Peterborough.

He hopes other municipalities will continue with the spray program, but won't know for sure until the meeting.

However, Davis is certain the program will continue in Haliburton County.

"We have a problem, and we have to carry on. There's no question in my mind the spray program will continue here, because we're on the leading edge."

Until then, Davis says, "the lateness of reaching an agreement will mean more cost to the county. It's downloading, it really is. And it's going to cost more for our co-ordinator and administration."

"But we're at the stage in Haliburton County where it can't go unchecked."

Davis was disheartened that the committee made no headway during the meeting with Wildman.

"We showed him defoliation maps, and outlined the history of gypsy moth infestation in Ontario," he said. "Eight of us took time to meet with him, and he only gave us 15 to 20 minutes."

Wildman's deputy minister remained at the meeting, but Davis said he "kept on telling us he wouldn't recommend what we were presenting to the minister."

According to the press release, Wildman attended the meeting to explain the ministry's concerns about the cost to taxpayers of the current spraying program, and the need for private landowners to assume a greater share of the costs.

Davis said this is unfair, because the private landowners in question are protecting others by preventing the problem from spreading through the spray program.

"The taxpayers are the same people we're talking about," he said. "Once you go through all the levels of government, there is only one taxpayer."

The news release quotes Wildman as saying: "MNR's current offer is fair and generous, and is similar to earlier proposals made by the negotiating committee."

"Our offer will not reduce the costs of the program for the taxpayer as much (as) we would like, but we are still prepared to leave the proposal on the table for the negotiating committee in the hope that we can reach a reasonable settlement."

In the negotiations, the ministry is proposing stricter criteria to limit the area eligible for spraying to reduce the amount of pesticide used.

"The new criteria will help to ensure that spraying of bacillus thuringiensis (bt), a bacterial agent and the only insecticide used in the program, takes place only where the health of the forest is threatened by the feeding of gypsy moth caterpillars."

Davis also takes exception to the ministry's statement that, although feeding by the gypsy moth caterpillar may increase the effect of other stresses on trees, the defoliation will rarely kill trees.

In the ministry's opinion, the gypsy moth has not caused significant forest mortality in the 10-year history of gypsy moth infestation in Ontario.

"That's a very asinine statement for the ministry to make," said Davis.

"I can say the very same thing about acid rain, I can say the very same thing about saddle prominent (caterpillar)... I can even say the same about drought. It's cherry picking. We all know that combined stresses will kill the trees."

In the meantime, the management committee will have to make the best of a bad situation, says Davis.

"I understand the ministry's position of fiscal restraint, but I just wonder where their priorities are," he says.

"The gypsy moth is not going to go away and, regardless of what the ministry says, they are going to kill trees."

"I'm frustrated, and discouraged. However, we have a problem in Haliburton County, and we must deal with it."

The Move Is On

Search and rescue: Canadian Forces aircraft makes use of Stanhope Airport for practise runs

A buffalo dropped in at the Stanhope Airport Thursday.

Rather than the shaggy quadruped which is a familiar western Canada symbol, this buffalo had wings, a crew of six and was stuffed full with rescue equipment.

The aircraft was from the Search and Rescue section of Canadian Forces Base Trenton. They crew, on a training mission, had chosen the Stanhope airport as a destination for a series of practise parachute jumps, and equipment drops.

The large aircraft moved in slow circles over the field, taking advantage of its low flying speed capabilities, to allow two of the Search and Rescue technicians on board to jump out at 1200 feet and float to the ground under colourful parachutes. Once on the ground, the technicians helped direct a series of over flights during which time the remaining crew members dropped a number of practise loads to test their accuracy. In a rescue situation, the crew would be dropping medical supplies, food rations, a water pump to a floundering boat, blankets and stretchers, or whatever might be needed to assist individuals stranded in an emergency.

Shortly after the last drop, the twin engine Buffalo banked sharply and descended rapidly to a landing. Moments after touching down, the pilot engaged the Buffalo's reverse engine thrusters to bring the plane to a rapid stop. According to one member of the crew, the aircraft can land in as little as 600 feet by throwing the engines in reverse and, in effect, slamming on the brakes.

As the Buffalo taxied to a stop near the terminal building, it demonstrated another of its unique characteristics. The plane came to a stop after turning onto the final approach. The co-pilot's head and shoulders appeared above the cockpit and, as he provided steering instructions, the pilot backed the huge aircraft into its parking spot.

According to airport manager Mike Carey, the Buffalo is the biggest aircraft to have landed at the Stanhope facility since it was upgraded. Several in attendance recall larger aircraft attending air shows held at the airport a number of years ago, but this was certainly the biggest since the paved landing strip was completed.

The crew then secured the craft and, using a more conventional form of transportation, took a taxi to West Guilford where they enjoyed lunch at The Cottage Restaurant.

The plane's manoeuvres and circling attracted the attention of many local residents who came to the airport to get a closer look at the craft after it had landed. An even larger crowd was on hand when the six man team returned an hour and half later to prepare for their flight back to Trenton.

A number of children and curious adults were given a first-hand look at the interior of the craft including an opportunity to get a pilot's eye view of the cockpit controls and examine the rescue gear carried by the aircraft.

Following the informal open house, the crew prepared for take off and the return trip to Trenton. Once again the Buffalo demonstrated its special capabilities as it used just a fraction of the runway to become airborne. The pilot circled once more over the heads of the spectators and then the Buffalo quickly disappeared in a southeasterly direction.

Green Lake cottagers Jan, Les, and Ken Wilson, of Baldwin, are shown the rescue gear in the back of the Buffalo by Master Corporal Simpson. The gear is packaged ready to be dropped to assist in rescue efforts.

A Canadian Forces search and rescue plan flies over Stanhope Airport.

Sir Sandford bids for building

by Susan Grober

Sir Sandford Fleming College hopes to find a new home in the Drag River Municipal Building when Haliburton Home Support Services moves out.

"We're having problems finding appropriate, affordable space," Campus Principal Barb Bolin told Dysart council at its meeting last Monday.

Bolin said the college needs short-term space in order to compete for industrial training programs.

The college currently owns the Sisco Centre on Highway 118, and rents space above Jasco, in the industrial park, and other areas.

She said one reason the former Home Support office would be desirable is that it's wheelchair accessible, unlike the Jasco building.

She also said the space lends itself for uses as classrooms and meeting rooms.

"We'd probably move the Futures program there," said Bolin. "It's a great space. And there is parking."

Reeve Bill Davis said council would lend its support to the college.

"I think we understand where you're coming from, and would like to do anything to oblige and help Sir Sandford Fleming."

Out of time

The time has come for the province and the counties to stop playing games over next year's gypsy moth spray program.

While the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Gypsy Moth Management Committee bicker back and forth over who is going to pay the cost of spraying, valuable time is being wasted which county coordinators need to plan next year's activities.

It's obvious by now that the provincial government has become extremely gun-shy about accepting any more spending commitments, which is understandable considering the criticism its endured for the $10 billion deficit.

And the management committee is worried that burdening landowners with a large portion of the costs will prevent some people from having their property sprayed.

Listening to the province and the municipalities squabble over program costs become a regular occurrence but while the politicians count dollars, residents of Haliburton County are counting trees and wondering how many will survive next year's gypsy moth onslaught.

Time has grown especially short for seasonal residents who will either closing their cottages and heading back to the summer, or preparing to head for warmer climes during the winter.

Either way these people will be removed from the planning process for next spring's spraying and accepting their applications will be difficult.

If our NDP government is as committed to the environment as it claims, it will make sure that sufficient financial resources are dedicated to protection of our forests.

By the same token, local municipalities and residents have to be willing to assume some of the responsibility for maintaining Haliburton County's natural beauty — the cornerstone of our tourism industry.

There has to be a middle ground and both the committee and the ministry have to reach an agreement soon.

The ministry's proposal to deal with individual municipalities if a province-wide agreement can't be reached would be a nightmare which would result in an unorganized response to the gypsy moth threat and would waste time we can no longer spare.

The burgundy BMW (vanity plate EGO 1) squeals to a stop directly in front of the NO PARKING ANYTIME sign. Vaulting from the drivers seat, a slim, tousle-haired businessman checks his Rolex wrist, hefts a slim attache case in one hand and a Toshiba laptop computer in the other as he jogs easily towards the glass doors leading to an exclusive-looking condominium tower. They made the guy up.

It's all part of a campaign to promote Egoiste, a brand new perf - sorry, "men's fragrance" due to be launched this fall. According to a company spokesman, Chanel's doing fine in the regular perfume trade. "The place left to develop the business is in the men's area."

Seems to me Chanel is a bit late off the mark - Brut, Old Spice and Canoe have been trying to spiff up male spoor for a few decades at least, but better late than no show, I suppose.

Besides, it's not as if it's a flamingly radical idea or anything. Ancient Greek and Roman males routinely doused themselves with everything from cinnamon to oil of quince. The emperor Nero spent the equivalent of $200,000 on rose oils and rose petals for a single celebration.

The Roman Empire may have crumbled into ashes, but it smelled good on the way out. Romans had perfume for their arms, perfumes for the hair, perfumes for the chest - even perfumes for the eyebrows. The elders (more on page 7)

NORTHCARE hindered by columnist's sarcasm

Editor:

Re: Arthur Black on Northern Community Advocates (NORTHCARE).

Arthur Black's recent column suggested that he had been in NORTHCARE offices. In fact, Mr. Black saw another article and copied from it, getting a few things mixed up. He has never been here, or spoken to us to check his facts, even though he wrote an article about us.

Articles like Arthur Black's, that poke sarcasm and cynicism at the Northern Ontario community lifestyle, make it very difficult for our tiny organization. Community life is especially difficult in Northern Ontario right now.

NORTHCARE is classified by the government as an environment organization, the only one representing Northern Ontario municipalities and municipal resolutions to promote Crown land multiple-use and our Northern Ontario lifestyle.

NORTHCARE is tiny, compared to other environment organizations that operate with millions of dollars. Northern Community Advocates, (NORTHCARE for short,) gets funding from membership and groups across Northern Ontario. With less than 10% of Ontario's population in Northern Ontario is very difficult to raise funds, compared to southern Ontario environment groups.

NORTHCARE spends its time working for responsible land and water resource management plans for Northern Ontario.

Community Tax Watch

by Gary Kenney and John Beachli

The Plan has three parts. First we are working toward a public meeting at 8 p.m., Friday, Sept. 6 in the Haliburton Village Legion Hall. We need you there. All of you.

When you attend you will not be issued a beret, Rambo knife, or Uzi machine pistol. When you come you will notice hundreds of people, neighbours, just like you. Some will be NDP supporters, others will have voted PC or Grit in past elections. All there will have one common bond... a sincere appreciation for the responsibilities of taxpayers to support the needs of our community, and just as sincere a hope that the responsibilities of taxpayers can be promoted in the November elections.

George Lansens will be flying in from Blenheim, Ontario. He will talk about his efforts, and success, as the first Ontario taxpayer to make a municipal council spend according to what is reasonably available in taxes, not what is needed to buy every item on every wish-list.

By the end of the meeting we will have your ideas for the next step. The November elections.

Every taxpayer is also a voter. If we do not want school and municipal tax increases to double the rate of inflation as they have in 1991, the ballot box must send that message. We can make sure every candidate states clearly his/her intentions, but only you can make sure, with two strokes of a pencil, that you are heard.

Finally, we intend to be there after the elections too. Taxpayers need changes in how budgets are announced, how background information is made available, and how tax increased are debated, and voted on by trustees and elected officials. Until those changes are made, Tax Watch will watch.

For the next 12 weeks you will be phoned, handed posters, and reminded repeatedly of your rights as a taxpayer. The buck is being passed to you.

Highlanders offer friendly service to cottagers

Editor:

As a seasonal resident for the past 46 years who hopes to become a permanent one within the next few years, I'd like to offer a sincere "tip-of-the-hat" to all the fine business people in the Highlands.

I have always been treated well as a seasonal customer, and have enjoyed the friendliness of the "Highlanders".

of the up and coming Christian church looked on with extreme and flinty disfavour. When the Roman Empire finally expired, so did the male perfume business.

And it pretty much stayed that way for several centuries. Now, Chanel hopes its new line, Egoiste, will awaken the dormant dandy in us all.

I don't think it's going to work. Not for me, anyway. I don't know anybody like the mythical Chanel critter who opened this column - and if I did, I wouldn't brag about it.

I think if men's perfumes are going to take off, perfume makers will have to offer more attractive essences. I don't know any guys who want to smell like tangerines, crushed almonds or the scent gland of civet cat.

Personally I've never had any desire to smell like a spilled spice rack or an old English saddle, either.

No, what we need are perfumes that reflect manhood. Authentic aromas. Essential essences.

Plain common scents, if you will.

Such as... oh, I don't know - Eau de Lumberjack, perhaps? How about Truckers Toilet Water? Cabbies' Cologne? I'm sure Toronto jocks would snap up Blue Jay Bath Salts - and I'll bet men's wear stores in Edmonton wouldn't be able to keep Eau de Oilers in stock.

There's a future for men's perfume alright, but not for me. I won't be dabbing any Egoiste behind my ears or on the back of my wrists. Just the usual soap and water. The world will have to take me as I am.

Lutterworth will enforce truck parking bylaw

by Susan Grober

Lutterworth council will no longer ignore requests that the township enforce its bylaw prohibiting the parking of trucks in residential areas.

Council passed a resolution on July 18 not to enforce the bylaw, despite a request by a group of Lutterworth Pines residents objecting to large trucks parked in the area every night by fellow property owners.

This decision angered a number of residents, including Norm Gemmell, who wrote: "Why was this bylaw passed in the first place, if not to be upheld?..."

"This is a township by-law that cannot be ignored! I see no other recourse for council to take than to enforce same. If not, you are making a mockery of the law and council."

Another resident, N. Moore, expressed disappointment "that the people we elected to represent us cannot uphold the bylaws that are on the books. If you ignore one law, how many more are you not going to enforce?"

When the matter came up at last Thursday's meeting, Reeve Carol Puffer, who didn't take part in the initial vote, said: "There's no point in even discussing it, because the resolution was denied..."

"We have to abide by our own laws, as far as I'm concerned," she said.

Deputy-Reeve Jim McMahon agreed the bylaw should be enforced, although he didn't agree with it. "It's stupid, and we've got to change it. We can't just ignore it."

"We've got enough unsatisfied people that, if we change the bylaw, we'll face the OMB (Ontario Municipal Board)," said Councillor Lisa Mercer.

The councillors in objection felt it unfair to enforce section 5.15.g. of the township's zoning bylaw, which states a property owner within any residential zone may park one commercial motor vehicle, provided it does not weigh over one ton.

"I don't like the idea of having to enforce it, but it's in the books, and that's the way we have to go," said Councillor Maurice Boyd.

Bylaw Enforcement Officer Ernie Roylance has received written complaints about vehicles parked on three separate residential lots.

Mercer said she has heard that the complaints have risen out of personal problems amongst the residents, who originally expressed concern that the heavy trucks create too much noise in the morning, and would damage the plastic water pipes running under the road.

"I don't like our bylaws being used to fight out a neighborhood problem," said Mercer. "But I'm talking hearsay."

Councillors asked Roylance what would happen if those not in compliance ignore the bylaw.

"If they disregard the notice I give them, I contact our lawyer and can charge them under that section of the zoning bylaw," said Roylance.

Council instructed Roylance to notify those Lutterworth Pines residents to comply with the bylaw.

"As elected representatives, we have the obligation to abide by our bylaws whether we agree with them or not," said McMahon.

Deep Bay Road to be repaired soon

by Susan Grober

Deep Bay Road will be safer for winter driving now that the county has finally received ministry approval for construction.

Work will be done on a hill which winds up and around Deep Bay, on Gull Lake.

The hill is especially treacherous in the winter time, so approval for construction has been greatly anticipated by the county roads department.

"We want to make conditions on the hill considerably safer for winter travel," County Engineer Bill Obee told The Times on Friday.

The county roads department has waited three-quarters of the year for approval, which finally arrived from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs last Monday.

"We've covered all requirements of all acts of all ministries for approval, so we can now proceed with construction," said Obee.

Approval for this particular project was necessary because the work is being done by the water. Because approval arrived so late in the year, construction won't be completed until next spring.

However, the improvements will be sufficient to make the road safer for vehicles once the snow and ice hit the pavement.

"We will get all the rock in, and some sand and gravel to create a second lane so its safer for vehicles to pass through, and safer to plough the road," said Obee.

A silt curtain has been ordered to go into the lake to control any silt from construction, he said. "When that comes, we will commence construction."

However, construction won't start until September 3, "so we do not disrupt the cottagers down there for Labour Day weekend," he said.

"Since we're this late in starting, we might as well wait a little longer."

Once construction starts, the county will close the road to through traffic on either side of the hill. "So people will have to go around during the construction period," Obee said.

New Haliburton building needs Skyslider property for parking

by Susan Grober

Haliburton's Skyslider will continue to operate for the next five years, but its owner hopes to tear it down after that time to make room for parking at his proposed social services building.

Steve Bowskill would have to tear down the water slide and Skyslider buildings in order to create the required number of parking spaces for his new office building, he said at last Monday's Dysart council meeting.

However, in order to save the business, which employs 25 people, Bowskill would like to pave a portion of the municipal road allowance and hold-off on creating the extra parking spaces until the Skyslider must be shut down.

The Skyslider has operated for 11 years, and it will cost $1.5 million to replace its track when the remaining five years of its life-expectancy are up.

Because of the cost, Bowskill has no intention of replacing the track.

"It seems to me we're closer now than we have been to an arrangement," said Deputy-Reeve Lloyd Leadbeater, who still expressed wariness about the matter.

"The five-year span is muddy" because there's no guarantee Bowskill can live up to the plan, Leadbeater said.

"Obviously, Steve Bowskill is going to continue to develop, and you're not going to issue me permits for anything if I don't come through," said Bowskill.

If council offered approval, "We could have 32 spots today, and an added 25 spots in a five-year time frame, at no cost to the taxpayer," he said, adding that the new building will create five new jobs.

Bowskill hopes to sell the 35 by 55 foot building to the Children's Aid Society. The proposed building will be just 15 feet from the Hillside House social services building.

He said it will benefit the area if council approves this new proposal.

"There's 100 feet of road allowance out there — what are you going to do with it?" asked Bowskill. "I will pay for (paving) it at no cost to the taxpayers..."

"Everyone can win on this," he said. "It will create parking, and five new jobs, and it will keep jobs."

Bowskill said there should be no problem stabilizing the hill behind the slider. "We have excavated it four times in the past few years, and I only slid once, but I rectified that."

He plans to plant some type of cedar which will create a root system to help support the hill.

Bowskill pleaded with council to make a decision on the matter soon, because he would like to start construction on the building this year.

"I'm not looking for a carte blanche letter of approval, but I'm working against the clock."

White water kayakers prepare for World Cup competition

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Members of the Canadian national white water racing team are gearing up for the World Cup competition in Minden this weekend.

Last week coach Mike Druce ran some of the team members through practice drills at the Wild Water Preserve, and he told The Times that several Canadian competitors have a good shot of improving their World Cup standings this weekend.

"David Ford is fourth overall and his best result was a bronze medal in Germany," said Druce. "It was the first time a Canadian has won a World Cup Medal."

Ford, who races in the single-man kayak event (K1), has placed third, fifth and 14th in the three World Events so far this summer.

Standings are based on a racers three best finishes and Druce says Ford is looking to replace his 14th place finish by being in the top 10 at Minden.

Ford placed second in last year's National Championships and posted an eighth place finish when Minden hosted a World Cup race in 1989.

Among women competitors, Joanne Woods is currently ranked 10th overall and Sheryl Boyle is ranked 18th. Both compete in the K1 event.

"We'll be looking to do better than we did in Europe," said Druce. "The women should do well and any of them are capable of placing in the top 10."

Also enjoying the workout at the Wild Water Preserve last week was Eva Roth who is a member of the German team. Druce said Roth came over early to prepare for the World Cup race and has friend among the members of the Canadian team.

Druce says friendships among the various nationalities is commonplace in white water racing.

It happens quite a lot. That's one of the great things, it's such a friendly sport."

Next year white water canoe and kayak racing will be official events in the Olympic Games held at Barcelona, Spain. During this year's World Cup events, Canadian competitors are trying to qualify for the Olympic white water racing team.

So far this summer, seven Canadians have qualified for the Olympics and others will be trying to do the same during the weekend.

ing the race in Minden and a week later at Wausau, Wisconsin.

As coach of the national team, Druce will be leading the Olympic team to Barcelona in 1992, a prospect he finds exciting.

While in Europe, the Canadian racers visited the recently constructed white water course in Spain. "It was really well done," says Druce. "Prepared sites are more unpredictable than natural sites, the water tends to surge more. It will take a little getting used to. We hope to make several trips to Spain to train on the course."

This summer has presented white water racers with an exhausting schedule. The season began on June 19 with the World Championships in Tacen, Yugoslavia followed by World Cup races in Germany, Italy and France, and a pre-Olympic event in Spain.

After holding a training camp in Minden, members of the Canadian team participated in the National Championships on the Madawaska River last weekend. The final two events in the World Cup will be held this weekend in Minden and next weekend in Wausau. "We'll be pretty tired by the end of the summer," says Druce.

Druce has only been coach of the Canadian team for the past 18 months. A native of Shrewsbury, England, he is a former member of the British slalom team and was the European junior team champion in 1981 and silver medallist in the Pan American Cup series in 1984.

When the position of Canada's national coach became available, Druce was helping to coach the British team on a volunteer basis. He applied for the job in Canada at the urging of several of the Canadian team members he knew at the time.

While the sport of white water canoe and kayak racing is still in its infancy in Canada, Druce says the popularity is growing. "The recreational side of canoeing is definitely growing," he says. "Racing is just starting to develop. In the European countries there are many thousands of competitors, in Canada it is a lot smaller. I hope when people see it in the Olympics, they will be encouraged to take it up."

Seventeen countries are sending teams to Minden for this year's fourth World Cup event with a total of more than 120 male and female competitors. Countries participating are Austria, Australia, Brazil, Canada, Czechoslovakia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Ireland, Italy, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Sweden, Switzerland, the United States, Yugoslavia and Latvia.

Spectators will be able to watch the current world kayak champions Shaun Pearce of Britain and Elizabeth Micheler of Germany as well as canoe champion Martin Lang of Germany. Previous world champions include Myriam Jerusalem of France, Richard Fox of Great Britain and Jon Lugbill of the United States.

The international athletes are being hosted by families in the Minden area in a billeting program organized by the Minden Rotary Club.

Organizers are still looking for a few more volunteer families to provide accommodation for competitors.

Anyone interesting in helping out should contact Rotary president Ron Gambell at 286-1532.

Huntsville defeats Westside Jug City, 4-0

by Jim Milne

Westside Jug City was defeated 4-0 by Huntsville in Muskoka District soccer action last Sunday, August 11 in Huntsville.

The team played without their regular goalkeeper, but the substitute, Chris Holliday-Rhodes, did a creditable job in the first half. He allowed only one goal although he felt uncomfortable. he regularly plays defense. Eoin Ross, also a defenseman, gamely volunteered to play goal in the second half. He saw three goals get by him, but he can't be faulted for the lopsided score.

Jug City again lacked substitutes. Huntsville is the strongest, fastest team in the league and Jug City couldn't keep up to them. This problem became apparent when key Jug City players, notably Chris Carl and Tim Davies, were injured in the second half.

The team will continue to practice on Wednesdays at 7:00 p.m. on the Archie Stouffer field in Minden. The team welcomes anyone interested in soccer or a good workout to attend. Unfortunately Jug City will be idle for the next two Sundays. The team was scheduled to play Alliston but Alliston being the weakest team in the league has folded.

Workshop a success

Line dancing instructor Bunny Burton, from Stouffville, kicks up her heels during last week's workshop held at the West Guilford Community Centre, despite the fact that she broke her toe the week before.

Line dancers from all over learn new steps

by Susan Grober

Anyone who thinks line dancing is just a fad for the older crowd should think again.

Although it is all the rage at the moment, it doesn't look like line dancing will be going the way of the twist, the hula-hoop or the dinosaur in the near future.

In fact, the trend seems to be growing stronger, because over 100 people turned out for a line dancing workshop sponsored by Haliburton Home Support Services at the West Guilford Community Centre last Thursday.

Ev Morgan, of the Haliburton Line Dancers, organized the event and was delighted with the response.

Not only did dancers come from across the county, but also from Kinmount, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Peterborough, Mount Albert, and beyond.

"It's amazing how it grew," she said, taking time out from a full day of work, learning new dances from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Even instructor Bunny Burton, and husband Bruce, were visiting from Stouffville.

It was their friend, Dave Grant, who suggested the event. Grant, who also took time out to lead a few dances himself, said the Burtons "are the leaders in line dance instruction in Stouffville."

"So they were just supposed to teach a few dances to us, but Ev worked like a beaver until we ended up with this," he said, referring to the throng of lively dancers.

"Line dancing is becoming a really wonderful hobby — it's catching on more and more in Canada," he said.

The line dancers kicked up their heels and shuffled their feet to a whole range of tunes, from old standards to more modern music.

Line dancing not only provides good exercise, but fun and friendship as well.

Most dancing groups meet weekly, at their respective community centres or clubs, and some even perform in public at local events.

Line dancers strut their stuff at West Guilford workshop all decked out in matching blueskirts, white blouses and red chokers, Morgan said the Haliburton dancers had their first public performance at an event where this more experienced group appeared.

"They were so good," Morgan said, "and there we were, never having performed in public before."

All the line dancers at last week's workshop learned some new moves, and met new friends.

And, from the overwhelming enthusiasm of the participants, who battled the hot, sticky weather, it was obvious that line dancing is here to stay.

Dysart Arena needs repairs

by Susan Grober

Members of the Haliburton Rotary Club would like to initiate a $280,000 project for renovations at the Dysart Arena.

Rotarians Jerry Walker and Greg Bishop received a positive response to the idea at last Monday's Dysart council meeting.

However, councillors agreed now's not the time to make any commitments toward donating to such a project.

Walker said the renovation project would improve the auditorium, kitchen, electrical and lighting, and add air conditioning.

The entrance would be upgraded to make the arena more accessible, and an elevator installed for wheelchair access.

Also, more storage space would be required, especially for when dances and meetings are held.

"It's sort of a total reconstruction of what's there," said Councillor Bob Nichol.

Walker said Rotary would like to help out with the project, but can't afford the suggested budget figures. The total cost would be about $280,000, and 50 per cent funding is available.

"So we need $140,000, but we have no idea at this point what our club can come up with," said Walker.

"If we can kick in some money, and you can too, we could handle it on that basis," said Bishop, adding, (more on page 19)

Clarification

A story in last week's paper states there are no speed limits on open lakes.

Although this is true, Minden OPP Constable Mike Maybee reminds lake users that there are bodies of water with designated speed limits, such as some rivers and bridge areas.

For example, the Gull River from Highway 35 south to south of Moore Falls has a 16 km an hour limit, and an underpass between Little and Big Boshkung lakes has a 9 km an hour limit.

Maybee says a sign is required to indicate the speed limit.

"If it's not posted, I can't enforce it."

There are also lakes with special restrictions posted. For instance, Spar Lake has a horsepower restriction, prohibiting any powered vessel over 10 horsepower from operating there. "That means no jet-skis or Sea-Doos or high-powered boats," says Maybee.

On the Gull River, south of Moore Falls, there is no water-skiing allowed.

And Basshaunt Lake has a complete power restriction, meaning only such vessels as rowboats, canoes and windsurfers can be used.

Maybee says there are eight different prescribed signs available, but any restrictions must be approved by Transport Canada.

"All sorts of people put up signs posting their own limit," says Maybee. But, unless it's approved and posted by Transport Canada, the OPP can't enforce it.

The Queen and her court

Minden's Tina Cox was obviously thrilled to be crowned Queen of the Haliburton County Agricultural Fair last Friday night. Cox, whose speech was on 'What Agriculture Means To Me,' is seen here at far left with first Princess Danielle LaRue, middle, and second Princess Dianne Garbutt, right. And Cox should certainly understand agriculture, as she was brought up on a farm, and helped start the Haliburton County Equestrian Club. The Fair Queen competition hasn't been held in 14 years, and proved to be quite a success, with each of the three contestants winning prizes.

Stanhope applies for computer grant

by Carol Moffatt

The following items were discussed at Stanhope Council last Wednesday.

Computer grant sought

Council has applied for a building administration grant of $5,000 to be put toward the computerization of the municipal offices.

The township hopes to be computerized by October when the offices will run both manual and computerized systems until January. The offices will switch to full computerization by January of 1992, said Clerk Gerald Bain.

Tax billing will continue to be done manually until 1993 to avoid any problems that other municipalities have run into.

The new system will allow Bylaw Officer Jim Moore easy access to building (more on page 19)

Stanhope approves church ramp codes, building permits, Ministry of Housing information, general reference and to the county's assessment department.

Wheelchair ramp approved

Council has agreed to allow Carnarvon's Zion church to build a wheelchair ramp into the church from the township's 66 foot road allowance. The proposed ramp is 20 feet long and will extend onto the road allowance to the east of the church where the old road used to run.

The efforts to purchase the road allowance had begun but a lack of funding put a halt to the plans. Council agreed to let the church build the ramp as long as plans were made by the church to purchase the road allowance in the future.

Covered bridge

A raft of letters objecting to the proposed covered bridge at St. Peter's bridge has led council to reconsider its motion.

Reeve Harry Davis said he had surveyed the area and had personally changed his mind about the bridge because a covered bridge would ruin the view.

Kushog cottager will take on the MNR

by Carol Moffatt

Stanhope Council has passed a resolution that could be a precedent-setting motion for landowners on environmentally restricted lakes.

Members voted Wednesday to support a Kushog Lake cottager who intends to take on both the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Ministry of the Environment.

Bill Branson, a cottager on Kushog Lake for 45 years,

"St. Peter's is the most attractive thing in this county and after having had a look around I object to this very strenuously," he said.

Other council members agreed that given the objections a covered bridge might better serve in another location at a later date.

was denied severance of 4,000 feet of frontage in the south basin of Kushog, an area determined to be unable to support any more dwellings.

Branson wants to sever the land into six or seven 15- to 20-acre lots for his family, but the MOE and the MNR have determined that Kushog's lake trout population is plummeting because of increasing phosphorous (more on page 23)

Arena needs repairs

"It's still pretty preliminary at this stage. Nothing may even come of it."

Councillor Murray Fearrey warned it wouldn't be fair for council to make any commitments because of the pending election in November.

"We're a laying duck council. We've got two months to go. We can't make promises now, because we might not be here," said Fearrey.

"It would be sad for us to nod our heads and have someone else come in and say, 'Hold on.'"

Councillor Dorothy Baker commended the Rotarians for taking the initiative and showing concern over the state of the arena.

"We've been talking about it for years and years, so I'm glad at least now there's a start, because it needs renovations," she said. "It really does."

"At least the wheel's in motion," said Bishop.

Reeve Bill Davis told the men that council's 1991 funds are already committed, "so you're probably going to get an answer in '92 or '93."

Stanhope supports Kushog cottager's stand against ministries levels.

Severences have not been allowed on the lake for several years based on MOE and MNR studies.

"I don't think we can stop development. Others fight it and try to get around it. We've met the requirements and now (the ministries) don't know what to do," said Branson, adding that he has no desire to harm the environment and wants to work with the ministries to do what's best.

Michael Michalski, an environmental representative retained by Branson, agrees with the determination that the lake cannot stand any more phosphorous loading but says trout are dwindling because the lakes are being re-stocked with fish raised in hatcheries.

Michalski says fish in natural environments have genetically adapted to increasing levels of chemicals and stocked fish cannot stand the sudden environment change, and a lot of the problem is blamed on man.

Michalski has proposed two alternatives which he says will satisfy the ministries' requirements and allow further development on the lake.

"The MOE agrees with the technicality of the proposals but they want it proved," said Michalski, a former MOE employee whose business includes environmental planning, biophysical analysis, lake capacity assessment and resource management.

Michalski's proposals

both involve stopping phosphorous from entering the lake, but both require support from local council because council would have to invest time and energy to monitor the phosphorous levels on behalf of the MOE.

"It's a burden on the municipality and my client will register funds in trust with the municipality to be used as the municipality sees fit in order to monitor the work needed over the years," said Michalski, adding he figures the proposal will have to be monitored for about 20 years.

The first proposal involves maintaining a large buffer zone between any building and the lake, within which no work will occur except a establishing a path to the lake.

"There would be no tree cutting and no soil mantle disturbance," he said.

The proposal includes using soil with a high capacity for phosphorous absorption in the tile fields.

The second proposal involves a phosphorous filter device as well as the buffer zone, said Michalski.

"The key here is that the owner will be required by the manufacturer of the unit to enter into an agreement with the manufacturer for maintenance," he said.

Strict adherence to either proposal would be maintained with an amendment in any offer to purchase and in the property title registration.

The same amendment would be used to alter the zoning by-law.

"The people who end up living on these lands will follow the rules, but the ministries don't have any comfort that the municipalities will carry out the rules," said Michalski.

Council that controlled development was a good thing but members had reservations about a blatant support of the idea.

"There is the possibility that if a precedent is set then it happens all over and suddenly the township has to hire more people to do all this monitoring," said Reeve Harry Davis.

Davis said council would pass a resolution outlining support for Branson if council could see correspondence between the ministries and Branson.

Michalski expects a meeting between all parties be arranged within a week.

Some products hazardous to nature and require proper disposal

by Christine Staddon

For many of us, the appeal of cottage life is being able to enjoy the unspoiled beauty of nature. We can keep it that way by taking extra care in handling - and disposing of - hazardous products.

These include barbecue starter, wood preservative (and wood scraps treated with preservative), pesticides, oil-based paint, varnishes, thinners, turpentine, gasoline, lamp oil, a variety of cleansers, and even mothballs.

Many of these products are toxic and flammable. Before you buy them, consider safer alternatives. Non-toxic paints, finishes, and cleansers, for example.

Buy only the amount you need to do the job. Always leave a hazardous product in its original container and store carefully, following the instructions on the label. Even better, give leftovers to a friend or neighbour who can use them.

Whatever you do, don't try to dispose of hazardous wastes yourself. Be especially cautious about what you pour down the drain if your cottage is connected to a septic tank. Some substances can kill the organisms in the septic tank that break down organic waste.

Some - certain toxic solvents, for example, pass through the system unchanged and are discharged directly into the soil. If toxins get into the groundwater they could contaminate local wells, and may eventually end up in the nearest lake or river.

The best thing to do with hazardous wastes is to take them to a special collection centre or depot. Several Ontario cities have set up permanent depots. Smaller communities are getting into the act by holding household hazardous waste collection days, funded in part by grants from the provincial environment ministry. Some of the wastes collected at the depots are recycled and the rest are shipped to a facility for disposal.

Your local municipal office will be able to tell you if collection days are planned for your cottage community. For information on organizing and funding such an event, call your regional Ministry of the Environment office.

Waste more a problem in cottage country

Even non-hazardous garbage can also be a problem in cottage country. With landfill space at a premium, anything you can do to cut down on your waste will help. Save empty bottles, cans and old newspapers and put them into recycling bins (some cottage areas have these now), or bring them home with you and put them into city blue boxes. And instead of throwing away organic waste, why not start a compost? It's easy enough to do and produces an excellent - and cheap - soil conditioner for gardening.

We can keep our cottage country beautiful. All it takes is a little thought and effort.

A useful reference is Cottage Country Environmental Manual for Cottagers. For a copy write Environment Ontario, 135 St. Clair Avenue West, Suite

Musicians make bus trip fun

July 28th Dianne Garbutt came again to play piano for us. She certainly can play classical music. She is studying music in London. We greatly appreciate her coming.

Monday night Tom McAllister showed us films. They were in two parts, "From Russia with Bruno Gerussi". It gave a cross section of life in Russia. It is very, very beautiful and accomplished.

Tuesday, Evelyn Coleman conducted Tuesday chapel and as usual everyone enjoyed her message. Thanks Evelyn. In the afternoon, we took a bus ride to Kawartha Dairy for ice cream before we left Minden, via Hwy 35 to Camarvon and Queen's Line and home to Hyland Crest.

Wednesday morning, my roommate was moved to a different area and I have a new roommate, Ann Collison. Later that day, I was pleasantly surprised when my aunt Florence Avery and her two daughters from Dresden, Ont. came to visit me. We went to places where we used to live, had dinner at Haliburton, stopped to see Terry's and then home. My guests were visiting at Uphill.

Thursday the tea party was brought by the Sara's

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum

Group U.C.W. They served a delicious tea that we all appreciated and we thank them.

Friday was Happy Hour with Everett Fearey singing and playing the guitar with Doris on the piano and the usual volunteers, Ellen and Don Holden, Mary Guillemain and Bonnie Fullan. Thank you all.

My son, Terry, came to see me Friday afternoon and took me out for coffee. Soon after he came, my sister's family from Peterborough arrived to take me to Redstone Lake to visit my sister-in-law, Wilda LaRue. I was unable to go, so they stopped on their way home, for a while.

At one o'clock Saturday, August 3rd, Dianna Morris read for us. She came again Wednesday at six o'clock and Friday as well. We have almost finished "Message from Nam" and thank her heartily.

Sunday chapel service was conducted by Rev. John Burgess with Alice Jones at the organ. We thank them both.

Tuesday chapel service was taken by Ruth Gorrie.

The residents thank her very much.

Saturday, August 3rd, Alice Todd attended a family reunion at her son Harold's home near Minden. There were about 40 present and it was enjoyed by all.

Tuesday afternoon Doris took us for a bus ride. The volunteers were Jack and Ruth Forester who, as well as helping with residents, sang and played the mouth organ and guitar on our entire trip. It was so enjoyable. We went down Hwy 35 to 121, to Fenelon Falls, Burnt River, Kinmount and home. No time for ice cream.

Wednesday was crafts, preparing for "County Fair Parade".

Thursday tea party was provided by Minden Line Dancers or Swingers and a delicious lunch it was, and then they entertained us royally with their line dancing.

At the close, Dorothy Milne, manager of the group, presented Doris Robertson with a cheque to Hyland Crest. We thank them heartily for the tea, dancing and cheque. In the evening Nancy and York Briggs called bingo for us, which we greatly appreciate.

Friday morning Doris took a busload of residents to the Community Centre to the Flower Show. It was a treat to see how beautifully they were arranged as well as seeing friends and having a lovely tea. Dianna Morris came to help Linda and Doris. Thank you.

The afternoon was Happy Hour with entertainment by Bob and Eddie Bastien, sons of Ellen Bastien, and of course Doris Robertson. The volunteers were Ellen and Don Holden and Janke Thomas. The residents and friends thank them enormously.

I had visitors that afternoon. My sister-in-law Wilda LaRue from Haliburton, a cousin Madeline Dennis, her granddaughter and family from Toronto and their friend from Haliburton Lake.

Walter and Vera Stevens enjoyed the Minden and District Horticultural Society's annual flower show held on August 8 and 9.

Show blooms forth with flowers and fun

Flourishing flora and fauna filled the Minden Community Centre on August 8 and 9 when the Minden and District Horticultural Society held its annual show.

This year's committee, made up of Jean Robson, Jean Lacey, Ann MacDonald and Illa Cooper, worked hard to make the show the success it was, and received many compliments.

An event of this nature doesn't just happen. Hours of dedication toward the planning, preparation, and work for the end results were required.

And so this year's show has come and gone — if you didn't attend, then you missed a dandy.

The auditorium was beautifully decorated with the theme of the show in mind, 'Critters 'n Flowers.'

To your right, as you entered, was an inviting pond with waterlilies floating on the surface. Surrounding the pond was a natural setting of evergreen, ferns, moss, partially decayed logs, inhabited by deer, rabbits, frogs, mice, turtles, snakes, etc., etc., to ideally put you in the mood. A very pleasing sight, indeed.

The exhibits covered the many display tables. This year's judges were Russ and Alma Gomme of Agincourt. They were quick to congratulate the Minden Society for the excellent lay-out of the show, the fine exhibits and the decorative ideas.

The following are the winners in first, second and third place order:

Large print books donated

by Joel Levis,
County Librarian

In keeping with its goal of community services, the Rotary Club of Minden has made a generous donation to the Haliburton County Public Library for the purchase of Large Print Books.

Prompt action by the staff of the County Library has seen many of the titles selected and received with processing continuing at a steady rate.

"It is hoped to have the books in place by the end of the month" reported Joel Levis, Haliburton County Librarian.

"All titles will have a special sticker attached identifying the Rotary Club of Minden as donors," he continued "and although they will be placed in the Minden Branch, they will be available for use by everyone in the county and of course, through InterLibrary Loan."

Covering a wide variety of interests - westerns, mysteries, etc. - these titles are ideal for those with vision problems wishing to continue the joys of reading.

And some people just prefer to read them because the print is so large!

Collections of LARGE PRINT BOOKS and their close cousins, TALKING BOOKS are to be found in most of the branches of the Haliburton County Public Library.

Parts of the original allowance for road along the shore of Mountain Lake in front of Lot 4, Concession 7, in the Township of Minden in the County of Haliburton, designated as Parts 3, 4, and 5 on a plan of survey completed by Deardon and Stanton dated March 21, 1990.

director of District #4 and who at the June convention in Sault Ste. Marie was elected as second vice-president for Ontario, then congratulated the society for its success, its endeavours at home and away. Our special efforts deeply appreciated.

Bert Card of Richmond Hill, president of all Ontario Horticultural Societies, was on hand to add his praises and thanks for our outstanding work. In his very casual and friendly way, Bert always carries wit and wisdom with him and we were indeed honoured to have him attend our show. He loves to come to Minden winter or summer.

Other guests were Hazel Wilson of Peterborough, secretary-treasurer of District #4, Assistant Director Fred Kelly of Port Hope and Dora Attwell of Omemee.

On Friday morning, the bus from Hyland Crest Senior Citizens' Home arrived with a load of flower lovers. These folks always enjoy our show and we love to have them.

Elizabeth Carrell demonstrated the artistry of drying and pressing flowers, when and how, and then what to do with the end results. Preserving flowers in silica gel proved very interesting. Elizabeth had several items she had made from these various methods and there were oohs and ahs as they looked at them. This revived an interest to go right home and get started at this interesting and pleasing past-time.

In the afternoon, Anne Neave came to show how to make a terrarium using sand, different soil mixtures for the various types of plants for the creation, and then the finishing touches — a lovely and very interesting addition to any home.

The Tea Room is always a favourite spot — to side down and enjoy a cup of coffee, tea or juice, munch on a goodie, to leisurely chit-chat with friends, and make new acquaintances, is indeed a pleasure.

Horticulture takes in a wide and varied scope, i.e. trees, shrubs, hedges, vines, grasses, flowers, plants, house plants, vegetables, balcony and apartment planting, etc., etc., etc., a very pleasant and rewarding challenge.

Come to our local horticultural events — every month, the first Tuesday, at 7:30 p.m., at St. Paul's Church Hall.

In September, we will have a speaker from the Royal Botanical Gardens in Hamilton to tell us about spring bulbs, and how, when and where to plant. Please join us!

Blooming beauties

Flowers filled the Minden Community Centre last week when the Minden and District Horticultural Society held its annual flower show. Here Fern Weldon and society member Lynn Hancock enjoy some of the other flower and vegetable categories on display. The show was held on August 8 and 9.

The Community Development Assistants will assist in linking the plan with several specific target groups. First Nations communities, people with addictions/mental illness dual diagnosis, and people with physical impairment and mental health needs.

POSTAL STRIKE

The possibility of disruption in postal service is looming in the near future. The Times has prepared a number of contingency plans in the event of a disruption of postal service.

- (A) When the last major postal strike occurred, Haliburton County post offices continued to operate providing limited local service (including rural route delivery). If the local post offices are operating, The Times will be delivered to the post offices for distribution through these facilities. (Minden, Haliburton, Carnarvon, West Guilford, Eagle Lake, Gooderham, Wilberforce, Kinmount, Norland and Coboconk).
- (B) If the local post offices are closed, newspapers for subscribers serviced by the above post offices will be available at The Times office (from noon Monday). Only the current address copies will be available for distribution through our office. All unclaimed copies will be held and sent when regular postal service resumes.
- (C) Subscribers NOT served by the post offices named above: your newspaper will be held at The Times office and forwarded to you upon the resumption of regular postal service.

We apologize for the disruption which may result from the anticipated postal strike.
